4. The operational plan has already been handed to the Staff of the First and Second Army.
5. Headquarters of the First and Second Army as well as the different divisional staffs are subordinated to the command of a member of the Advisory Corps, or his deputy. These members are equipped with accurate instructions from the Advisory Corps or with instructions from the General Staff of the Red Army.
6. Issue orders concerning the super-ordination of these members of the Advisory Corps, or their deputies. All orders become effective on June 23rd at 2400 hours. They are valid until revocation.
7. Reports on fulfillment of these orders must be made immediately, but not later than June 23rd, 12 o'clock.

Comment: The order given above appears to contain certain discrepancies that may reflect on its authenticity. For example there are no elevations on Bulgaria as high as that given for Elevation Point 4487 (see paragraph 2, a). It is likewise most unusual to describe a geographical point as being "19 kilometers north of the 44th parallel". The town of Pecs is never called Funfkirchen in Magyar or any slavonic language, it is the old German name of this city. This order is dated 27 June, but was to come into effect at midnight on 23 June; however, units were to report execution of orders twelve hours before that time.
